FOR INFORMATION

INITIATED BY: Executive Committee

TOPIC: Emergency Assignment Registration Certificates

ISSUE: The Board is asked to approve proposed changes to General Regulation 202/94 under the Pharmacy Act, to allow for temporary registration certificates to respond to pharmacy workforce challenges resulting from the impact of COVID-19

PUBLIC INTEREST RATIONALE:

As outlined in the Regulated Health Professions Act, 1991 (2.1 Schedule 2, Health Professions Procedural Code) “it is a duty of the College to work in consultation with the Minister to ensure, as a matter of public interest, that the people of Ontario have access to adequate numbers of qualified, skilled and competent regulated health professionals”. As we enter a second wave of the COVID-19 pandemic, and as the demand for pharmacy services increases, along with growing concern about the strain of the pandemic on the pharmacy workforce, as well as other health professions, regulatory intervention to enable surge capacity within the pharmacy workforce is in the public interest.

BACKGROUND:

Throughout the pandemic, the College has maintained its commitment to its public protection mandate and focused its efforts on supporting the profession and collaborating with stakeholders throughout the health system to identify and implement solutions aimed at overcoming unique challenges posed by the pandemic in the delivery of safe, quality pharmacy services.

Earlier in the pandemic, the College recognized the potential need for additional pharmacy personnel to be authorized to provide patient care as the health system ramped up its capacity to manage the challenges associated with the first wave of the pandemic. As an immediate response, the College worked quickly, within our existing regulatory authority, to enable qualified pharmacy professionals with a pathway to return to practice (recently resigned registrants and Part B pharmacists), and encouraged individuals holding other registration certificates (e.g. pharmacy students and interns) to work to the fullest extent of their current scope.

In July, as the first wave of the pandemic subsided, the College surveyed community pharmacies and hospitals to better understand the workplace challenges they experienced during the pandemic to date and their anticipated workforce challenges leading up to the annual flu season and potential second wave of the pandemic, which at that time had not yet been felt. The intent of the survey was to assess the need for the College to act on its regulatory mandate to ensure the continued delivery of safe, quality pharmacy care to Ontario’s communities through additional registration-related measures.

Although pharmacies reported some workforce capacity challenges, the need for immediate regulatory action at that time was deemed to be low, particularly as the entry to practice exams for pharmacist and pharmacy technician candidates had resumed. It was anticipated that delays in registration would be minimal and not require immediate regulatory intervention.

Furthermore, under current regulations, pharmacist graduates who have not yet completed the required examinations in order to be fully licensed as pharmacists in Ontario, have been able to register as pharmacy interns and engage in the full scope of practice under the supervision of a pharmacist, who in a community pharmacy is physically present. Many graduates have been providing services in community pharmacies in this capacity which has contributed to the public's ability to access needed pharmacy services.

However, although the College was initially satisfied that the province had an adequate supply of pharmacy professionals to serve the public, the growing and sustained pressure of the pandemic on the pharmacy sector and profession as a whole reinforced the need for an immediate and long-term solution that would enable a nimble and responsive pharmacy workforce capable of managing a surge in demand in the event of a significant environmental, social or health emergency that may otherwise potentially put the accessibility of pharmacy services at risk.

ANALYSIS:

Growing pressures on pharmacies and the workforce

Pharmacies and pharmacy teams have played an important role in supporting patients and the public during this pandemic. Since the pandemic was first declared, pharmacy professionals have been on the frontline of the pandemic response and have continued to serve their communities as other parts of the healthcare system began to scale back or adjust the level of services they could provide as part of a broader public health response aimed at reducing the spread of the virus in the community.

As we enter a second wave of the pandemic with higher case counts and greater confirmed community transmission of COVID-19 among the general population, pharmacies are being called upon to provide services to their patients and communities. Many pharmacies are now taking on COVID-19 testing of asymptomatic patients as part of the public health response rolled out throughout the province and are once again playing an active role in administering the flu shots in an environment of heightened demand for the flu vaccine.

These pressures are contributing to a growing perceived concern about the strain placed upon the pharmacy workforce capacity at a time when it is important to ensure sustained access to adequate numbers of pharmacy professionals to serve the public during the public health crisis.

Interruptions to full licensure may limit ability to respond to emergencies

New applicants who would have normally entered the workforce as fully licensed pharmacists and pharmacy technicians have faced challenges doing so as a direct result of the pandemic.

In order to be registered as a pharmacist or pharmacy technician in Ontario, pharmacist and pharmacy technician graduates are required to complete a practical assessment of competence (PACE/SPT), a jurisprudence exam and the Pharmacy Examining Board of Canada (PEBC) Qualifying entry to practice exam. Each of these requirements is non-exemptible under General Regulation 202/94 of the Pharmacy Act, 1991.

However, the examinations that would enable pharmacy graduates, for example, to register with the College as fully licensed pharmacists were either cancelled or scaled back in capacity in May and again in November due to public health restrictions. This has subsequently created a backlog of graduates waiting to complete the examination, with the next scheduled exam date scheduled for February 2021.

Despite PEBC's efforts to identify potential alternative solutions to host exams as scheduled, the pandemic and associated evolution of public health measures mean that the February 2021 sitting of the exam cannot be guaranteed at this time and the ability of PEBC to accommodate a large cohort of students taking the examination including those whose exams had been previously cancelled has not yet been established. Although graduates remain able to practice to their full scope under the supervision of a physically present pharmacist as they wait to complete this non-exemptible registration requirement, they remain unable to practice independently as pharmacists which may limit their ability to be fully utilized in support of the broader health system response to any emergency such as a pandemic.

Exploring emergency registration

Based on current modelling by public health officials it is likely that the second wave will continue well into the New Year. As the pandemic progresses and positivity rates continue to increase, front line workers are at an increased risk of being impacted personally and unable to meet the workplace demand for their services. In addition to community practice environments, hospital practice environments are also experiencing increased demand for pharmacy services during the second wave of the pandemic due to the workload associated with continuity of non-COVID related essential but non-urgent services, which were suspended during the first wave.

Due to the uncertainty and rapidly evolving situation presented by the second wave, and the prolonged and increased demand for pharmacy services during this crisis, there has been a growing urgency to establish mechanisms that would enable a surge capacity of the pharmacy workforce to respond to public health and other emergencies, thereby insulating against a risk of a potential acute shortage of pharmacy professionals.

In anticipation that the necessity for additional workforce capacity might change, the College has been engaged in discussions with the Ministry and had initiated a review of other regulatory frameworks for temporary emergency registration. Based on this review, and given the similarities of the College of Nurses of Ontario registration regulation framework, their model for emergency assignment certificates was most appropriate and readily adaptable for inclusion in future registration regulation changes submitted by the College. Emergency assignment registration certificates are temporary in nature and automatically expire or can be revoked at such time that the emergency is resolved. They can also be renewed as necessary to address prolonged emergency events like a pandemic. Certificate holders can also continue to complete requirements for full registration while holding the emergency assignment certificate if they choose.

Enabling temporary emergency assignment registration requires changes to the General Regulation 202/94 under the Pharmacy Act, 1991, and consequently, requires government approval of the proposed regulatory changes once submitted by the College.

Consideration regarding public consultation on regulatory changes

While public consultation for a period of 60 days is a requirement for regulations submitted by the College (RHPA, Section 95 (1)), the Board may seek approval by the Minister to waive or reduce the period of circulation. (RHPA, Section 95 (1.6)).

RECOMMENDATION:

That the Board approve the proposed changes to General Regulation 202/94 under the Pharmacy Act, 1991 (Appendix 1,2 and 3) to allow for emergency assignment registration certificates for pharmacists and pharmacy technicians and,

That the Board seek approval by the Minister of Health to waive or abridge the requirement for a 60 day public consultation period of the proposed regulation changes.

NEXT STEPS:

If approved, the College will prepare the regulation for submission to the Ministry and seek approval from the Minister to waive or abridge the 60 day consultation period. Should consultation be required, it will be conducted using our standard public consultation process and feedback will be provided to the Board prior to final submission. Should the Minister approve waiving of the public consultation the proposed regulation will be submitted to the Ministry immediately.

The College will also continue to work with the PEBC, universities and colleges, pharmacy associations and government to seek solutions that will allow for entry to practice assessments to proceed, while protecting the health of all involved.

As such, with the inclusion of these two new certificates, the College has streamlined the process for ensuring the continuity of care for patients within the province by reducing the barriers to registration to enable adequate staffing levels are met.
